Japan's Rabbit Island

- 1 Japan's Rabbit Island have around a thousand wild rabbits. No one
- 2 knows exactly why they came from. One idea is that some rabbits
- 3 were released by schoolchildren many decade ago.

4 There have no animals that prey on rabbits on the island. Cats and 5 dogs aren't allowed, and people can't hunt the rabbit either. People
6 who visit the island often fed the rabbits. They don't need to worry 7 about food at all. That is a reason why the number of rabbits keep 8 rising year on year. However, people rarely give them food they shouldn't 9 eat. For example, food like cabbage should upset the rabbits' stomachs.
10 Food isn't available all the times though. On sunny days, lots of people 11 visit. When it rain or isn't a holiday, there aren't so many visitors. That 12 isn't good news for the rabbits but it's best to let them find its own food.
